The following was sent to the KY Skills U listserv.

CHECK THIS OUT!

Did you know that the KY Skills U Lesson Bank has been visited by people in 49 states??

The nation is watching your good work, happening across the Commonwealth every day!

Over the next 3 days LINCS (an initiative of the U.S. Depart. of Education, Office of Career, Technical, and Adult Education (OCTAE) to expand evidence-based practice in the field of adult education) is featuring the KY Skills U Lesson Bank, as a strong example of an open education resource for high-quality, contextualized lessons to prepare students for the transition to college or career.

Please visit LINCS and then click on Community at the top of the home page, and scroll down to the "Reading and Writing" Community.

If you are not yet registered, you will need to do so in order to post to the discussion, it's very easy to complete.

 Professional Development	 Program Management
 Reading and Writing	 Science

LINCS would love to hear about your experiences with both lesson planning and using the bank, or perhaps student reactions to lessons that are contextualized for the workplace or a specific career cluster. Share stories of classes you have taught using lessons from the bank, and students who gained information or skills they needed to transition to employment, training or college.
